

Patient Emergency Disaster Preparedness

Disaster Risk Classification:

Low Risk - If you are classified as low risk, you can safely forgo a scheduled visit without a high probability of harm or deleterious effects as long as you or a family member can provide any necessary care.

Average Risk - If you are classified as average risk, during a disaster or emergency, you will need to have family/caregivers or an alternate means of care (e.g., medical shelter nursing home, hospital) to provide these services to you.

High Risk - If you are classified as a high risk, in case of a disaster or an emergency, you are probably best cared for at an alternate care location such as a hospital, nursing home, or medical shelter.
